

Coaching for executives

Managers above a certain hierarchical level receive little honest feedback, e.g. on their leadership behavior. Top Executive Coaches Stefanie Böttcher and Daniela Kauer offer you the opportunity for constructive feedback in an appreciatively open atmosphere. The aim of this coaching is to get to know yourself better with the support of resource-oriented methods in order to be able to solve personal questions more easily and increase your own effectiveness. The personal development that is thus possible offers new opportunities both in the professional and private environment.

Method

Systemic Coaching is a dialogue in which your personal system is examined and processes are set in motion that can be valuable for you and your systems (e.g. professional and private environment). Your systems will react and move to your changes. This can be imagined as a mobile: one element is triggered and the other elements move with it. A further aspect of coaching is the motive structure, which is determined on the basis of the motivationpotentialanalysis (MPA). The aim of the MPA is to find out your personal motives. Motives are what motivates us. If we can live them, it is easy for us. If we have to suppress them or try too hard, we run out of power. Through the MPA, you become aware of your motive fields and can place them specifically in your environment in such a way that you can develop your full performance Potential.

Drain

In a preliminary telephone conversation you will discuss possible concerns and questions. In preparation for the coaching, you will be sent the link to the Motivational Potential Analysis Questionnaire (MPA), which you will process in advance. There will be two full-day appointments 6-8 weeks apart at selected locations in southern Germany.
